

FEBRUARY QUESTIONS

Only a Bibliophile Extraordinaire will answer all 10 multiple choice questions correctly.

- Q1. Who wrote "Dead Wake: The Last Crossing of the Lusitania?" Michael Blow, author of "A Ship to Remember," or Erik Larson, author of "Lethal Passage," or Doug Stanton author of "In Harm's Way?"
- Q2. Walter Van Tilburg Clark wrote "The Ox-Bow Incident," or "The Searchers," or both?
- Q3. Who wrote "The Winemakers Wife?" Kristin Hannah, or Kristin Harmel, or neither?
- Q4. Ursula K. Le Guin wrote "The Dispossessed," or "Lao Tzu," or both?
- Q5. Eugene O'Neill wrote "Major Barbara," or "Come Back, Little Sheba," or neither?
- Q6. A pen name of Stephen King is Richard Bachman, or Peter Straub, or both?
- Q7. Which one of the following was NOT written by Shirley Jackson, author of "The Lottery?" "The Road Through the Wall," or "The Bird's Nest," or "The Birds?"
- Q8. Which American poet wrote "Deliverance?" Walt Whitman, James Dickey, Maya Angelou, or Jane Hirschfield?
- Q9. Which of the following were written by Rafael Sabatini? "Captain Blood," "Scaramouche," "The Sea Hawk," "The Tontine," or all?
- Q10. The twin brothers in "Cutting for Stone" by Abraham Verghese are Marion and Thomas, or Mark and Ghosh, or Marion and Shiva?

Answers are at www.thelanierlibrary.org or at the circulation desk.